Freedom in Molina by Gerard Smith, S.J. After lying in manuscript form for 27 years, this penetrating study has finally been made available for scholars. Fr. Smith here analyzes Molina's conception of human freedom and studies its relationship to the theories of Luther, Calvin, St. Thomas Aquinas, and Bañes. Both Luther and Molina would have been surprised at landing in the same philosophical camp. 230 pp., 1966. $4.00.

An Epistle of Comfort by Robert Southwell, S.J., edited by Margaret Waugh, foreword by Philip Caraman, S.J. Elizabethan prose and timeless spiritual message, presented in fluent, comprehensible English. A faithful rendition for the general reader, scholar, and historian. 278 pp., 1966. $5.00.

Lebanon, the Land and the Lady by Joseph Goudard, S.J., and Henri Jalabert, S.J., translated by Eugene P. Burns, S.J. Reveals the religious aspirations of the people of Lebanon, recounting the history of Christianity and devotion to Mary. 364 pp., 1966. $14.00.

Judaism and the Christian Seminary Curriculum edited by J. Bruce Long. The proceedings of a pioneering effort in the area of seminary instruction and interfaith relations. Seventeen papers by Catholic, Jewish, and Protestant scholars. 176 pp., 1966. $2.95.
